

JUST MANALIZED

Brand Foundation v1

Made in El Gouna. Going International.

Handmade, one-of-a-kind coastal-cowgirl hats — born on the Red Sea, worn everywhere.

1. The name is the story

Just Manualized = Manal + manual (by hand). The founder's name and the entire method are fused into one word. Don't explain it apologetically — make it the origin myth. Every hat is manualized: touched, shaped, and finished by Manal's hands, never machine, never duplicated.

Optional bilingual layer to confirm with native readers: منال also carries the sense of something attained / within reach — a quietly perfect double meaning for a piece that's desirable but personal.

Handle / domain anchor: justmanualized

2. Positioning

For women who want a statement piece, not a souvenir — the resort and marina set, festival-goers, and the global coastal-cowgirl audience.

Just Manualized is the handmade Western-boho hat brand from El Gouna, where every piece is one-of-one and hand-embellished by its maker.

Unlike the mass-produced cowboy hats flooding the trend, ours is singular, slow, and made by a real artisan in a real place — provenance you can name.

The moat: the trend is everywhere; the handmade, named-origin, one-of-one version is not. That's the whole game.

3. Brand pillars

- 1. One of one — no two hats alike. Scarcity is the luxury mechanic, not a flaw to hide.
 - 2. Made in El Gouna — Red Sea provenance as a mark of origin, like a fashion house’s “Made in ____.”
 - 3. Coastal cowgirl — sun, marina, a little untamed. Freedom you can wear.
 - 4. Collectible, not disposable — these are pieces you keep and name.

4. Visual codes — “a Manal”

The recurring signatures that make a hat recognizably hers from across a room. Lock these and repeat them:

- Hero trio: turquoise cabochon + cowrie shells + antique silver concho
 - Cream macramé fringe and tassels
 - Wine / burgundy band against natural straw
 - Contrast hand-stitching (the visible human touch)
 - Occasional beaded “creature” motifs (scorpion, bull-skull) → reserve these for a signature series

5. Color palette

Role	Color	Hex
Base / paper	Sand	#F4ECDC
Primary dark / text	Espresso	#2B1D14
Primary accent	Wine	#6E2B33
Pop accent	Turquoise	#2F9C95
Neutral	Cream	#F1E7D3
Metallic detail	Brass	#B08D57

Wine + turquoise on sand and espresso is unusual, distinctive, and pulled straight from the product itself — it will read as yours, not as generic boho.

6. Typography

The move that makes this feel international and premium rather than tourist-shop: pair an editorial serif with a clean sans. The refinement against the rustic, hand-made product is exactly what signals “elevated.” Avoid literal Western/saloon fonts — they cheapen and date it instantly.

- Display / headlines: high-contrast editorial serif — Fraunces (free, buildable now) → upgrade to Ogg or Canela later
 - Body / UI: humanist sans — Geist or Inter (free)
 - Signature accent: a refined script, used very sparingly for “Manal’s hand” touches (e.g. each hat’s name) — not for paragraphs

7. Logo direction

The brand already owns a logo device: the concho medallion. A stylized circular concho-with-turquoise emblem works everywhere a wordmark can’t — favicon, social avatar, leather hang-tag, the stamp inside the hat band.

- Wordmark: JUST MANALIZED set in the display serif, wide letter-spacing
 - Emblem: circular concho/turquoise medallion mark (the recognizable shorthand)
 - Signature: a script “Manal” for authenticity moments

8. Voice & tone

Confident, warm, a little wild. Short sentences. Sun on them. Never corporate.

-  “Made once. Never again.”
-  “Born at the marina. Packed for anywhere.”
-  “This one’s the only one.”
-  “Shop our premium collection of artisanal headwear.”

9. Content system

The AI-vs-real rule, because money is involved:

- AI imagery → hero banners, lookbook, ads, social mood, the marina fantasy.
- Real photography → every product page. Because each hat is one-of-one, the customer must see the exact piece they'll receive. An AI hat on a buy button = returns and broken trust.
- Maker content → a thin, steady layer of Manal's hands mid-make. Cheap insurance for the handmade claim, and the one thing no factory can fake.

10. E-commerce architecture

The product dictates the build more than the branding does. This is not a size-and-color catalog.

- A rotating gallery of singular pieces. Each hat: its own page, its own name, photographed individually, marked SOLD when it sells.
- Drops & numbered editions — collecting UX, not shopping UX.
- International-ready from day one: English-first, multi-currency, global shipping, clear customs/duties note.
- Hat-sizing guide — sizing is the #1 reason hats get returned online. Solve it visibly (measure-your-head guide, adjustable fit where possible).
- El Gouna / Arabic heritage lives in the storytelling and soul — not as the operating language.

11. Naming system

Every hat gets a name — it reinforces one-of-one and makes the gallery feel like a collection. Draw from El Gouna places, Red Sea elements, and desert winds:

Abu Tig · Marina · Lagoon · Mangrove · Khamsin · Mistral · Sahara Rose · Tawila · Mahmya · Zeytouna

Reserve the beaded-creature pieces for named signature drops.

12. Tagline kit

- Positioning line: Made in El Gouna. Going International.
 - Consumer lines: "One hat. Made once." · "No two alike." · "Handmade on the Red Sea." · "Wear the marina."

Open decisions

1. Logo route: concho-medallion emblem (recommended) vs. monogram — pick one to design first.
2. Founder visibility: how much Manal-the-person appears on-site vs. the brand as label.
3. Price tier: anchors everything from photography polish to packaging.
